

Captains of Industry OR Robber Barons? Poster Assignment

Outside of class, you will be creating a colorful poster about a leader of big business in the Industrial Era. Were they captains of industry to be thanked for advancing society, or robber barons who stole their wealth by cutting others out? You will be creating an 8 ½ x 11 poster to introduce one industry boss to the class by displaying both positive and negative aspects of these individuals.

You will be looking in to one of the following big business leaders for your poster. Please circle the person you have been assigned.

$ Andrew Carnegie

$ J.P. Morgan

$ John D. Rockefeller

$ Jay Gould

$ Cornelius Vanderbilt

$ Henry Ford

Your poster must:

- use color to effectively communicate and be visually intriguing
- include the name of your industry boss
- include an image representing your person
- creatively describe as many positive contributions as possible
- creatively describe as many negative contributions as possible
- include the major industry(s) this person was involved in

You have been provided one page of factual information about your person, which is also posted on the weebly. Acceptable web-based resources are listed, by person, on the weebly. No additional resources may be used.

More points will be awarded for posters done by hand. This is to reward the effort required to create a product by hand and to encourage you to think about what you want to include. While you may include images printed off a computer, you are encouraged to be as creative as possible.

This poster is due Monday, May 7th and will count as a test grade.
(I will gladly accept posters at the start of the day for use in earlier.)

On the reverse of this assignment is the rubric that will be used to grade your posters. Be sure to consult it as you are working to check your own progress.

As always, if you have questions, please ask! Email me as soon as possible. You are being given at least a week to do this project and I expect it to show care and effort, so plan ahead. We will be using your posters in class, so you will need it to participate.
